

A fragment retrieved from Ciara's followers and translated, Bears Moot 1107:

"In the beginning there was chaos all followed the great ones in their own way and with their own practises. There was much warring and turmoil. Though the number of his followers was vast, their differences were almost as vast as their numbers. Though their belief in his greatness was true, strong and unrelenting; their ignorance in the ways of his followings did hinder them from truly experiencing the great part of his existence.

And so in his wisdom our great lord did send unto his people three chosen above all others to lead and guide his people to true and mighty glory of might lord Ciara. For he would take his rightful place above all the other great ones

The first of his chosen was gifted with the sprit of his strength and glory in battle. She would lead his people in war and battle against the false and misguided non-believers who would appose his will. She would be savage as the most fearsome of storms and bring destruction on all who would appose his rule. She would hence forth be known to all as Athdara, the Savage Rogue.

The second of his chosen was gifted with the spirit of his wisdom and knowledge. She would provide the wisdom and guidance to those that wished to know more of his greatness and come to follow in his ways. She would know all that he wishes his people to know and would watch over them. She would hence forth be known to all as Beathas, The Mysterious Wisdom.

The third and final of his chosen was gifted the spirit of his grace in the life beyond this realm. She would guide his followers in their final embrace. She would guide them through the journey to his glorious kingdom beyond the mortal world and to the glorious and eternal existence in his realms after death. She would hence forth be known to all as Fia, The Darkness of Peace.

To better convey the word of his greatness, the three Aspects then selected from among his many followers those who were deemed worth to become true acolytes to one of his aspects and they were formed into the three sacred orders of Ciara.

The Swords of Athdara were the warrior caste, those who were the most mighty, blood thirsty and brave in battle. They live and die in bloody war in the name of Athdara. They are marked out from all others by the swords tattooed into their hands. The inks for their tattoo is said to be made from the blood of their most worthy of foes in battle.

The Order of Beathas were the sage caste, those who were wise and knowledgeable in the ways of magic and the actions of those who follow our great lord and master. They are always watching and listening for they know all that takes place. There identity is often unknown but it is said they are always tattooed with a sign of two crossing daggers in green, but the tattoo may be hidden and out of sight.

The Hand of Fia were the caste of the life beyond this world, those who hearts are cold, who live this life for death. They are most feared of all as they bring death in ritual sacrifice in the name of our great lord and master. Where they go death will follow, they are the punishers of those who fail the service of great and might Cairn. They mark their skin with the executioners axe tattooed in blue ink.”